

Thursday 4th June - ANSWERS

There are lots of possible ways of showing the meanings. I've put some obvious ways that I thought of but you might have thought of others that are also good. Read each one carefully to work out why they're hinting what we're after.

inferred (hinted) meaning	how authors might show it
It was cold.	They put extra jumpers on, as well as their coats, hats and scarves. Clouds of breath appeared each time he spoke. Frost clung to the window as she peered through the curtains.
It began to rain.	I put my umbrella up quickly. As the heavens opened, she dashed for shelter. Just like the weather, she began to cry.
She'd hurt her head.	She rubbed her head, where a lump was growing quickly. Her head was bleeding. Her head would be black and blue tomorrow. A plaster covered up a small patch on her forehead.
She was nervous.	She began to bite her nails. She gulped. Her eyes darted this way and that.
He wanted to eat the fruit.	The fruit looked so juicy and delicious. His mouth watered as he stared at the fruit. He tried to ignore the growl of his stomach as he looked at the fruit bowl on the table.
He had a good idea.	"I've got it!" he cried suddenly. He sprang to his feet with a gasp. Just then, he turned to look at me with a twinkle in his eye.
They didn't want to be seen.	They ducked quickly behind the wall. That night, they wore entirely black. They waited until the room was empty before tiptoeing in.
He was scared of the wolf.	He backed away from the wolf quickly. Seeing the wolf, he turned and fled. He stood frozen to the spot as the wolf approached.
She was not scared of the wolf.	She laughed at the snarling wolf. As the wolf came towards her, she held out her hand. She walked confidently towards the wolf.
